

PLETHORA

The trend invites you to immerse yourself in colorful ethnics. Its development is a tribute to the attention to the South. The focus is on Africa, where local fashion is developing rapidly, and commitment to national identity is an attribute of luxury. We develop traditional exoticism with moderate expressiveness in the palette of nature and crafts. Floral patterns and prints are adjacent to the quiet ethnics of crochet and macramé. Visual and tactile appeal is maximum. Key colors are paradise green, anise, burnt sugar, Barbados cherry and purple amaranth. Important are woven trim elements, guipure with a large pattern - in neutral tones.

FABRICS:

1. Noble ethnics: materials with an unprocessed look are combined with natural mixed variations; textured surfaces, woven trim elements, guipure with ornamental large patterns in neutral natural tones.
2. Tropical abundance: floral patterns in bright combinations; lace, microfiber from recycled scraps with an expressive print.
3. Tamed exoticism: monochrome tropical floral and plant patterns in lace, embroidery on mesh, matte biflex.
